

Support the Guardian

Fund independent journalism with $5 per month

Support us →

World Europe US Americas Asia Australia Middle East Africa Inequality Global development

Hong Kong

This article is more than 1 year old

Two Hong Kong universities remove Tiananmen artworks after Pillar of Shame dismantled

CUHK's Goddess of Democracy and a sculpture at Lingnan University were removed overnight as authorities move to erase memorials to the massacre

The Goddess of Democracy statue at CUHK in Hong Kong has been removed. Photograph: Yan Zhao/AFP/Getty Images

Yermo, California, US

People help place the artist Chen Weiming's latest sculpture, CCP Virus II, on a concrete pedestal at Liberty Sculpture Park

Photograph: Frederic J Brown/AFP/Getty Images

